CREWE, VA., January 11, 1895. To the Editor of the Dispatch: To the Editor of the Dispatch;
In connection with the gold-brick swindle, I noticed a statement in your edition of Tucsday, January 8th, to the effect that a telegram was sent from Petersburg to Crewe to arrest two of the swindlers, who were on the Norfolk and Western train, No. 1, which arrives at Crewe about 2:19 A. M. Now, if such a telegram was ever sent, and I have no doubt but that it was, neither the town stigeant nor myself have ever seen it, and the first we ever heard of it was through the columns of your paper. I live in almost a stone's throw of the telegraph-office, and the sergeant in less in almost a stone's throw of the graph-office, and the sergeant in less a half a mile of it, and if any sort diligence had been exercised by the receiver of the message, both the sergeant (we have only one policeman) and myself would have been at the station, and the criminals would have been arrested, but, as I have before stated, we have rever even seen the telegram. I think that this explanation should be published in justice to us, as it looks bad for our lown as the matter now stands.

National-President John A. Lee was present, and made an address to the members, stating what progress had been made in securing mileage books and excess-baggage rates. He said that the House of Representatives bill No. 3291 had been reported from the Senate committee, and was now on the calendar, as was No. 771. The former bill provides for the issuance of joint, interchangeable 5,000-mile tickets, with special privileges as to the amount of free baggage that may be carried under mileage-tickets of 1,000 or more miles.

The Railroad Committee decided to take immediate action regarding the issuance of a 5,000-mile book at the same rate as that issued by the Rig Four, over twenty-seven different railroad lines, and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern rail-The committee will also confer with Mr. E. Week in Which to Get Subscriptions. When a Dispatch man dropped in at the cal Society's office yesterday, he found ing a number of letters that will be sent out to-morrow morning to the committees recently appointed to canvas the city for subscriptions to liquidate the debt now due by the society. The Secretary asserted that there seemed to be little doubt that the money would be ruised, and that the society would give another exposition this year, equal to the spiendid show of 1894. The committees are meeting with very good success, and just as soon as a final report is made the Executive Committee will have a meeting and decide whether or not an exposition. In the lower parts of the city it got some distance out of its bed, and all of the celiars on Main, Cary, and Franklin streets, in the vicinity of Shockee creek, are filled with water, which has backed up in that stream. In Rocketts the water rose to a considerable height, being ten feet in some places, but the inhabitants of that section are more or less accustomed to the vagaries of the James, and were but little discommoded. All of their goods and chattels were removed to places of safety cre the ries had assumed any proportions.

The sheds of the Virginia Navigation Company were completely covered by the water, and these of the Old Dominion and Ciyde lines fared but little better. Professor Haupt's Richmond German class was elegantly entertained last night at the home of Colonel W. E. Cutshaw, the occasion being the commencement or conclusion of the course. There was a play, "One Must Marry," followed by recitations, dialogues, &c. Refreshments were served, and all had a most delightful time. The entertainment was confined to the members of the class, about sixty in number.

Gillis, of the Sixth, and G. W. Barbour, of the Eighth. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Anderson, and the election of a president was first discussed. The name of Mr. Joseph Bryan was mentioned for the position, and he was telephoned to to ascertain if he would accept if elected. His reply was in the affirmative, provided his election was unanimous and the members of the board piedged him their united and active support, and he was then formally nominated by Mr. Brown, with the result that he was unanimously elected. He arrived at the hotel shortly afterwards and took the chair. He made a very comprehensive address, in which he outlined the work that lay before the association. After a comparison of the soil of Virginia with that of the Western States he spoke of immisration and of the necessity for inducing thrifty agriculturists to come and settle in the Oid Dominion. In order to get this class of immisrants, however, he said, it was absolutely essential that good roads should prevail throughout the State, on which the farmers could haul their produce to the markets.

THE WORK ALREADY DONE. THE WORK ALREADY DONE.

Vice-President Anderson submitted his report of the work of the association report of the work of the association during his service as acting president. The report was of a general character and very exhaustive, and among other things he suggested that it was desirable and almost essential for the association to have some malaried man who would give his whole time and attention to the interests of the organization.

The cost of running the association then presented itself, and upon being asked by the president, Mr. Anderson estimated that it would require an annual amount the president, Mr. Anderson estimated that it would require an annual amount of $2.50. He thought the salary of the general agent and secretary should be fixed at $1.200. Mr. Brown offered as a motion that Colonel Thomas Whitchead be asked to enter the service of the association in conjunction with his duties as Commissioner of Agriculture, and that he be employed at a salary to be fixed between himself and the Executive Committee, to go through the State and create enthusiasm among the farmers in the objects of the association. This motion was put in the shape of a resolution, and was finally adopted.
